Let's Start!

There are many attractions and landmarks in Mexico City!

Learning Outcome

Accurately use information, involving apologies, thanks, suggestions and invitations in communicative situations.

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about travel.
- I can make and respond to suggestions.
- I can talk about hobbies and interests.

Ask your partner:

- Do you like to travel with people or alone? Why?
- How often do you travel?

Let's Explore!

Sally has some ideas for Vanessa's trip to Mexico! What are they?

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Vanessa: Hello?
- Sally: Vanessa, it's me! I have some good ideas for your trip to Mexico.
- Vanessa: Really?
- Sally: Yes, I saw a brochure at the mall.
- Vanessa: And?
- Sally: Well, there are many attractions and landmarks in Mexico City.
- Vanessa: Like what?
- Sally: The monuments and architecture. You could go with a tour guide!
- Vanessa: Tour guide? I don't know ... I prefer to travel alone.
- Sally: Well, how about visiting the ancient ruins?
- Vanessa: You mean, I have to take a bus or car?
- Sally: Yeah ...
- Vanessa: Mmm, I'd rather not. It sounds like too much work ... it's a holiday! I want sun and sand!
- Sally: So, why not go to the beach, have a cold drink and enjoy the view?
- Vanessa: That's what I'm talking about! I plan to! You should come, too!

Let's Practice!

Do you remember the new words? Let's find out!

Learning Points

Making and Responding to Suggestions

You use suggestions when you want to tell people what you think they should do. You can make suggestions using a modal, like should or could. Here are some examples of making and responding to suggestions:

Making a Suggestion	Responding to a Suggestion
How about ... ? You should ... Why not ... ? You could ...	Good idea. Great suggestion. OK. I don't know ... I'd rather not ... Mm, I don't like ...

Examples:

- Bill: How about visiting the ruins?
- Jeff: I don't know ... I'd prefer to go to the beach.

Taking a Tour

In many parts of the world, people like to take tours in a group with a tour guide. They travel together and learn about different places from a person.

In North America, it is very common for people, especially young people, to travel alone or with a friend. They prefer the freedom and independence of this.

What about people in your country? Do they travel with a tour guide or alone?
